UI / UX Designer

TwelfthMan - London
UI / UX Designer at TwelfthMan

ABOUT US

We are a creative agency that combines a love of sport with a passion for design. We are fiercely passionate about creativity and constantly dare to challenge the norm and reshape conventional brand thinking. Whether it's branding, content, digital, or motion, the audience is always at the heart of what we do. Our bespoke approach to projects means we tackle all kinds of briefs. From developing brand strategy to creating incredible content. Great achievements don't happen by accident. They're hard-earned, well-deserved and impossible without the support of a team.

We service world class clients such as UEFA, The Premier League and The ECB from our offices in London, Barcelona and Copenhagen.

We are passionate about design and digital innovation and our line of work is suitable both for candidates who share a passion for sports and for those that do not.

THE ROLE

The position for a mid-level UI/UX Designer has become available to work in our digital department. You will be an enthusiastic team player who is passionate about creating beautiful user experiences and interfaces which solve problems and make user's lives easier.

Responsibilities will be split across multiple web/responsive client projects as well as two internal products which are in private beta, due to be launched in the next 12 months.

This role is ideal for a candidate with solid commercial experience and the desire to step into a role where you are the the sole UX 'guru' in a growing company. We will look to you to transform the broader UX and design approach to various projects across the company from your experience and knowledge of best practice.

You will be familiar and comfortable working with interdisciplinary teams including visual designers, developers, QAs, clients and internal stakeholders. Therefore, your ability to communicate effectively, pro-actively and precisely is a must.

You will be able to hold on to strong ideas – but lightly – and will have excellent interpersonal, diplomatic and persuasion skills (when necessary) to help all stakeholders get on board with your thoughts. You will be a strong independent thinker but also know the importance of collaboration and that great teams are bigger than the sum of their parts.

REQUIREMENTS

- 4/5 years of user experience design for web
- Experience with quantitative methodology such as A/B testing, click testing etc.
- A portfolio which showcases a broad spectrum of skills and exercises from understanding users to sketching, wireframes and lo-fidelity working prototypes where necessary etc.
- Strong sketching ability
- Excellent written and spoken English
- Up-to-date knowledge on latest technology trends and design software
- Strong ability with the Adobe Creative Suite and Sketch
